There Needs To Be Some Tax Leeway

There is-or was-a presidential commission to study the division of responsibility between the federal government and the states.

The subject has increasingly heavy bearing on the problem of federal spending. Some of the spenders in Washington seem to have the idea they are running a monopoly.

They aren't. New York, Pennsylvania and California are wrestling this year with budgets of more than two billion dollares and looming deficits. They and all other states are combing over the possibilities of sweating more revenue out of their taxpayers.

The same thing is being done at the local level. The Washington tax-spenders take the biggest slice of the revenue pie, but they are not the only pie-eaters. There needs to be some tax leeway for counties, cities and

Important as it undoubtedly is to spend millions on rockets that never fly away, on battleships that are junked before they are finished, on aid to foreign allies whose needs never can be satisfied and on luxury automobiles for officeholders who could very well afford to buy their own transportation, there are other pressing demands on taxpayers'

They are growing demands, moreover. Many are the result of projects that had to be deferred during the 1940s when federal needs were exclusive - when it was mild treason to wonder why every federal project was untouchable per se while state and local projects could be postponed indefinitely.

Much as the federal spenders try to make it appear that they alone have the secret of putting the United States into a high economic orbit by spending more billions than they have the courage to ask for, state and local spenders are putting the old college try into spending, too. Many of them aspire to make the Big Team in Washington.

They used to try to reach the Big Team by saving money back home, but that's out of style. The key that opens the door today is to be an apprentice Spendocrat.

The boys in Washington had better leave leeway for the boys back home, or they'll never make the team. And their taxpayers won't last long enought to see them star in the Big Time.

If Congress Accented The Negative

Senate majority leader Johnson has gone on the defensive with a statement to the press that Congress in recent years has been the "saver," not the "spender" in dealing with Eisenhower budgets. The senator from Texas says Congress has cut Eisenhower administration requests by 22 billion dollars in the last six" years.

But the issue between Congress and the White House at the moment is whether Congress, controlled by Democrats, will stay within federal income estimates of about 77 billion dollars or spend more than that without raising taxes; i.e., by adding the surplus spending to the national debt.

If Congress went over the 77-billion-dollar break-even point by 12 billion dollars, which is an outside estimate, it would be adding the equivalent of $68 per person to the debt, assuming a population of 175 million.

Suppose that Congress were to take the potaxes. That would mean a tax increase that tirely. They would lose it, hands down.

would cost $68 apiece for every man, woman and child. In order to make a tax boost of that magnitude, it would have to soak taxpayers heavily, to make up for children and non-taxpayers in the population. It would take a major tax increase to do this.

If such an increase were proposed, the accent in the national debate over federal money management would be on the negative, instead of the positive. Millions of Americans would be hopping mad. All the air would be let out of the Spendocrat philosophy.

That is why Spendocrats do not want to talk about taxing, only spending. There are no votes to be won by taxing, only by spending - and that is why the Spendocrat credo of making the country better off by spending money it does not have is the cheapest kind of political con game.

If Sen. Johnson and his partisan majority in Congress proposed new taxes or increases in existing taxes to cover their spending prosition that it should recover this amount in posals, that would be another argument en-

A King Pays A Visit To Midland

We join with residents of Midland in extending the hand of welcome to King Peter of Yugoslavia:

Our neighbor in Beaver County is one of the stopping places on Peter's six-week stay in the United States.

The exiled monarch is without a country, but not without countrymen. He has a deeprooted love and devotion for his former subjects. A new home for some 100,000 unsettled southern Slavs who have escaped the Iron Curtain is one of his goals.

So it must have been with mixed emotions that Peter made his tour of Midland today. He could not help but marvel at her industrial might; at her modern schools; at her inspiring churches, and at the countless other worthwhile things of which she can

But while marveling, he also must have experienced a note of sadness and regret that so many of his people are lacking such ad-

It seems unlikely, however, that Peter can leave Midland without a new flame of hope kindled by the knowledge that so many of Yugoslav ancestry, also once unsettled, have found a permanent and welcome home in communities like Midland and hundreds of others under our democratic form of govern-

Donovan To Dulles To Destiny

The death of Gen. William J. Donovan, who directed the Office of Strategic Services in World War II, has occurred at an instant in history when his OSS techniques may spell the difference between peace and war.

These techniques, as practiced since World War II by Central Intelligence Agency under Allan W. Dulles, are the only means the United States has of learning the status of its security relative to the security of its potential antagonist, Russia.

If this country lacks reliable information about the strength of Russia's preparations, it has no choice but to prepare itself excessively, to be on the safe side. It can do only what it has been doing since the end of World War II, which is to have little or no confidence in itself while taking every-

The Once Over

City job holders everywhere may be required to adopt code of ethics if New York idea is followed. It seems that too many city employes, despite home, school and even college training, have had trouble telling difference between right and wrong. It's hard to see how a code can be much help but if written instructions are needed to keep such people honest, who can object? The New York code is too windy. Only two sentences really are needed: 1. Consult your conscience twice a year. 2. Never work both sides of the street. It should begin with the words: "You must have heard of the Ten Commandments and been brought up right. But we are sending you a copy of a code just in case they got the brushoff."

MANY BIG CITIES of the United States have had trouble from finaglers and grafters, large, small and medium, for generations, Dick Croker would have sneered, "Sure I know what a code is. It's what you check with your hat in a restaurant." Boss Tweed might have snapped, "Look up this ethics business. If I get my cut I'm for it." "The conflict of interests" is the target of Gotham proposed Code of Ethics. Great danger is that even a member of some Board of Ethical Enforcement would have so much trouble understanding ethics that he might put three cousins on city payroll to help him fimd out whether the word is spelled with two "t's."

There have been people in big city administrations since pioneer days who have thing the Russians say at its face value, to be sure of having a margin of security.

Everything the United States does is an open book, despite the comic - opera antics of top-secret clowns in government who sit on all the wrong things while the things that should be kept secret are handed out to anyone who will ask for them. But nothing the Russians want covered up ever is exposed willingly. CIA has a hard job - harder than the job the OSS had under Gen.

If it ever learns how to do it as well as the British, for example, Gen. Donovan will be credited with fathering the American version of the art of keeping posted about the secrets of other governments. He will deserve the honor. No American did a more efficient job under heavier handicaps than Gen. Donovan.

This "operation," launched by Hoffa's ex-prize fighting buddy, Paul Dorfman, dedicated itself to placing insurance against the high cost of childbirth, ill health, old age and other vagaries which might come into the lives of tens of thousands of Hoffa's own followers in the Michigan Conference

IN APRIL of '52, Hoffa's buddies thought they just weren't earning enough in return for their devotion to the welfare of the truck drivers. So they increased the cost of the Teamsters' insurance, raised their own commissions and cut the benefits to Hoffa's followers. With his permission.

The latest figures show that perhaps labor is "pricing itself out of the market" and that laborsaving machinery is being forced on industry at an unprecedented Thus the economic unit of "U.S.

News and World Report" in a copyrighted article this week presents the results of a survey of the job loss in the last 10 years. This survey reveals, for instance, that since the close of World War II, the output per worker has increased 19 per cent in steel because the industry,

"pressed by high labor costs, has rushed new equipment and techniques to hold payrolls down." The result is that in 1958 the steel business employed only 536,-000 workers. The article says that "if output per man had been the same as in the postwar years 1947-49, steel companies would have needed 637,000 workers." Similarly, in autos, labor's loss in 10 years due to higher output per man is 132,000 jobs. An additional 48,000 jobs were lost due to the imports of foreign cars.

Another dramatic example is in bor-saving equipment has kept down the number of workers. In 1958, in the bituminous coal status a year ago. What is needed, of course, is a study by the government to learn just what kind of companies in each industry are finding it hard going and why.

The outward appearance is of a boom because many of the well financed and more efficient plants, where new machinery has been introduced, can do a better job and at lower prices competitively than can many of the so-called marginal companies.

AMERICA CAN HAVE a boom among the large industrial plants and yet see the plants of smaller companies running at much less than normal capacity.

The Department of Justice seems to think the answer lies in bringing anti-trust suits against the large companies but this alone cannot halt the drift toward more mergers. The plight of the smaller marginal companies is producing much of the unemployment.

Mergers among smaller companies are inevitable in many industries but even this will not help much if the big labor unions negotiate wage scales with the big companies at rates that are ruinous to the smaller companies.

The national pattern is usually set on the basis of contracts with the large corporations. The smaller ones have to pay the going wage rates or find themselves out of business.

THIS IS WHY what is going on in Washington today is so important to the national economy. If the budget remains unbalanced in the coal industry where a 46 per large amounts, the purchasing cent increase in efficiency and la- power of the dollar will continue to slide down.

Nearly 25 attended the meeting of the Negro Civic League Tues-day night in the league's headquarters on Beleek St.

It was agreed to stage teen-age dances each Friday night, following a request by six youths who attended the meeting. Plans were discussed for a program to beautify and improve the building.

Items were displayed by a sewing circle. Mrs. Ella Gibson, president, presided. The next meeting will be March 10.

Wellsville Chief Asks Fire Protection Forms

Fire Chief Robert Lewis today asked that all residents in the Wellsville rural fire protection area return the questionnaires mailed them last week.

The completed forms have been returning, but only at the rate of 10 to 15 a day, he said. The department has about 100 of the forms but between 750 and 1,000 were mailed.

Smoke or Smell!

No Trip... No Drip

Cancel those unpleasant trips to the garbage can. There Is an easier way. Just wrap the garbage. Drop it, with or without other refuse, into a tidy indoor gas incinerator. Right away...no garbage!

Anything Burnable

... can be disposed in your gas incinerator; papers, cartons, rags, bones; and it's silent! The timer-controlled gas flame starts instantly from a small pilot. Garbage is quickly dried and incinerated.

Garbage Becomes Dry Ash

Because of the new down draft, fumes are drawn through a jet-like "afterburner" and entirely consumed. That's why there's no smoke or smell. Everything is reduced to a bit of ashes. Keep your home "rubbage"-free and health-safe for pennies a day.

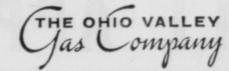

FREE BOOKLET TELLS ALL: less odorless incinerators with older models, how they work, about the Gas Company endorsement. Call this number, ask for your FU 5-7000

Conducting Meetings Will Be Series Theme

LISBON - Techniques of conducting programs will be the topc for the first in a series of meetings for organization officers and leaders Thursday at 1:30 and p. m. in the Agricultural Extension Service Office, according to County Agent Floyd Lower. The evening session will be a repetition of the afternoon program for those who prefer to attend at

John B. Mitchell, extension rural sociologist at Ohio State University, will lead the discussion. The subject for the meeting Feb. 19 will be "So You Are In Charge of the Program" and will include methods of obtaining speakers and program material, mechanics of meetings and essentials of a good program. The topic Feb. 26 will be "How to Work With People."

The meetings, open to all who care to attend, are planned to help persons who have the responsibility of planning and conducting public and business meetings.

Complaint Against Phone Firm Dismissed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - A complaint against Northern Ohio Telephone Co. has been dismissed by the Utilities Commission. It was originally brought by John W. Kemper, organization director of the Ashland County Farm Bu-

Kemper, who now lives in West Salem, said equipment was outdated and the number of places a subscriber could phone limited. But his successor, William A. Mc-Nutt, told the commission Kemper had advised him Northern Ohio has since given the only extension of service it is in a position to grant. McNutt suggested the complaint be dropped and the commission agreed Tuesday.

The former Ohio Republican senator said O'Neill "kicked every Republican in the teeth who went out and worked for him. I supported him as best I could, but, frankly, I didn't break my neck for him."

Of the Chamber of Commerce he said: "I'd like to dump the Ohio Chamber of Commerce right in the middle of Lake Erie for what they did to the Republican Party on that right-to-work business at the last election.'

The right-to-work issue, backed by the Chamber of Commerce, brought out a heavy labor vote in November and many Ohio Republicans were swamped.

Bender spoke at a meeting sponsored by the Chagrin Falls Chamber of Commerce. He now heads a committee appointed by James Hoffa, president of the Teamsters Union, to help clean up the un-

The former senator said he thought Eisenhower was personally a "good man," but that the President associates himself with too many rich men.

"Eisenhower ought to read a little more about Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt, who had respect for the rich but who had love in their hearts for the poor people," Bender said. He also said that he had never

New Orleans Ends Mardi Gras; Now Turns To Lent

NEW ORLEANS (AP)-With another Mardi Gras part of history, New Orleans put away its carnival atmosphere until next year. Today was one of solemnity as many in the city began observing the 40-day Lenten season.

The Mardi Gras season, which began officially 12 nights after Christmas and reached its climax Tuesday with an all-day celebration, ended officially at midnight. Rex, King of Carnival, set off the festivities when he boarded his mobile throne and led his parade through the heart of the city. From then on, anything went. Costumed participants jammed the main business section, roaming up and down streets cleared of traffic for the occasion. Comus, the oldest of the Krewes, Tuesday night put on the final procession of the parade season, which began Feb. 1.

Many of the parade floats and onlookers were caught in intermittent showers. But even occasional heavy rains failed to drive
